Eurovet Brings New Solution to Vitamin K1 Supply Problems

Eurovet Animal Health brings the first veterinary licensed injectable Vitamin K1 preparation to the UK this week

Fast Action

The Eurovet injectable, Vitamin K1 TVM, differs from human preparations in that it is formulated for use by the intravenous route. This ensures 100% bioavailability almost immediately and in a crisis situation it is the best route of treatment. During anticoagulant poisoning, the coagulation factors are present in the body but are not functional. The faster Vitamin K1 enters the blood flow, the quicker the coagulation function is restored.

Incidence of Rodenticide Poisoning

Anticoagulant rodenticide poisoning is one of the most common queries received by the Veterinary Poisons Information Service, which receives well over 1000 telephone enquiries per annum from UK veterinary professionals seeking advice on how to manage potential and accidental exposures to anticoagulant rodenticides, mainly in dogs.
